Dear Members of the MIRC Commission,

Are you going to allow childrent who have had Famos Coverage to continue on their parent's insurance, i.e. Medicaid, when they reach the age of 18 and are still going to school, i.e. college like the other insurances that allow students to be covered until the age of 26.

They have no access to coverage when they lose this coverage. This creates issues with continuing care for asthma, and other ongoing issues these young people have.

Lack of coverage for basic care is an issue for folks with chronic medical conditions that lose coverage due to loss of employment, and illness.

Sincerely,

BEVERLY LARSON
