Comment - Expanding Medicaid with an eye on having a fully functioning medical service system is a necessity for the ACA's successful implementation. We must look to the future, the demographics our society is facing, and provide sound financial, healthcare systems for the future. Medicaid expansion with the Federal Governments help is a step in the right direction; nevertheless, it will need work, maintenance, and efforts from future legislatures, for this system to function. Not accepting this needed financial bridge will disenfranchise a significant number of people. Political denial is a vicious mistress, who has returned many uncomfortable wounds to those who fail in their resolve to face problems with sound judgment and an eye towards the future. A viable healthcare system should be available to all who are alive, our demographics suggest that medical needs will only increase with time, don't act as if the problem will fix itself, and accept the expansion.
