

Virginia MIRC&lt; vamirc@mirc.virginia.gov&gt;

---

New MIRC Comment

1 message

Fri, Oct 11, 2013 at 9:53 AM

Reply-To: [REDACTED]
To: vamirc@mirc.virginia.gov

First Name - PhilipLast Name - PosnerOrganization Name - Retired Medical Faculty,MS Society

Comment - Medicaid Comments I am a retired Medical Faculty member with close to 40 years experience in health care delivery and research. I am currently a resident of Virginia and have been following the Medicaid discussion closely. From all the data I have seen published by the government (State, Local and Federal) as well as healthcare deliverers (doctors, hospitals, social welfare groups) accepting the Federal Medicaid option is a win/win for all involved. • Patients in need will receive health care. • Virginia will save money while delivering needed healthcare. • Hospitals and doctor's practices will survive financially in Virginia. • University Hospital systems will benefit financially. • Virginia citizens will have their federal tax dollars multiplied and invested in local health care. I have not seen any negatives other than the complaint that the Federal government might fail to deliver the promised funds. However, if that were to happen, Virginia would not be required to make up the short fall. So that is a False negative.

---

Medicaid Comments.pdf
181K

Medicaid Comments

I am a retired Medical Faculty member with close to 40 years experience in health care delivery and research. I am currently a resident of Virginia and have been following the Medicaid discussion closely. From all the data I have seen published by the government (State, Local and Federal) as well as healthcare deliverers (doctors, hospitals, social welfare groups) accepting the Federal Medicaid option is a win/win for all involved.

- Patients in need will receive health care.
- Virginia will save money while delivering needed healthcare.
- Hospitals and doctor's practices will survive financially in Virginia.
- University Hospital systems will benefit financially.
- Virginia citizens will have their federal tax dollars multiplied and invested in local health care.

I have not seen any negatives other than the complaint that the Federal government might fail to deliver the promised funds. However, if that were to happen, Virginia would not be required to make up the short fall. So that is a False negative.