Comment - I support Medicaid expansion in Virginia. Those who need healthcare the most are often the ones who cannot afford it or cannot take care of themselves for no cause of their own. Many in this group are currently excluded from Medicaid by strict eligibility restrictions. Caring for these individuals has hidden cost which we all pay for in one way or the other. I believe when all cost are considered, the financial burden to Virginians will be minimal given the federal support that is available. It will be a lost opportunity to help those in need if this support is not accepted.
