Comment - Expanding Medicaid coverage to vulnerable Virginians, not otherwise covered by the Affordable Care Act is an act of caring and also a jobs program too good to pass up. The first three years of funding are mostly covered by the US and up to 400,000 more Virginians will receive much needed health care. I see growing social distress at food programs where I volunteer in my community in Warren County. Helping to ease health care worries for people needing help with the next meal is a no-brainer.
