Comment - As a citizen of Virginia and as a taxpayer who has been fortunate to have had insurance coverage for me and my children through employers, I know how important access to health care is and how important coverage is to families. I write in support of the Medicaid Expansion in the hopes that individuals and families who have not been as fortunate as I will be able to have routine and preventive health care when it is needed and not be forced to wait until expensive interventions are necessary. This just drives up cost and my own premiums. Communities need healthy citizens and being unable to afford insurance is not a character flaw but points to a real need in Virginia to respond well for all its citizens. Status quo is not acceptable.
