Comment - I strongly agree that Virginia should adopt the Medicaid Expansion as part of a comprehensive attempt to ensure that all our state's citizens receive the health care to provide a good quality of life and an equal opportunity to succeed at school, work, and in the communities in which they live and interact. Having worked many years as a Financial Services Supervisor at a city Dept. of Social Services, I can attest to what a difference having access to health care providers for needy children and qualified adults can make in so many ways. It's not fair to not have available the Medicaid Expansion to those individuals and families not eligible for regular Medicaid, nor for the subsidy under Obamacare. The only way to cover these folks who fall thru that crack is for the Medicaid Expansion to be brought on board. Why would we not want all Virginians to have an reasonable expectation of having their rights to healthier lives be a reasonable expectation? Health care coverage should be a right--not a privilege.
