Comment - Please consider the plight of those who are caught in a financial crisis due to health who have tried to be financially responsible. If they own their cars outright or own their home outright with no leins or loans on them they should not be denied help. Quite often their credit is already ruined by medical bills and they do not qualify for a loan on their property so they have to sell and lose everything they have worked for to try to get medical treatment before they qualify. However, if they rent, have a mortgage or loans in their cars they often qualify for benefits. Please consider expanding to help those who have tried to be financially responsible only to lose everything when they became sick.
